FRIDAY, APRIL 26, 1901.

CHINESE SLAVE TRADE.

There has been an awakening of the better sense of the people of San Francisco about the slave trade in girls, which has been practiced on the coast since the appearance of the Chinese in the gold fields of California.

The degrading influence connected with the trade and the presence of that portion of these people who engage in the trade cannot be described without the use of language that would be improper at the hearth stones of the people.

The influence of these virgins, who are in their modes of life foreign to our civilization, and to our ideals of life, has had a most degrading tendency. It has been destructive of good morals wherever it has made an appearance.

There is an unexplained cause connected with the existence of the slave trade in children and in girls which has been passive, while the slave trade was active.

There is a barrier which separates western civilization from the civilization of the Orient. The repugnance arising from caste and race prejudice had its influence in begetting a spirit of indifference respecting the doings and modes of life practiced by the orientals.

There was a peculiar condition of society in the early settlement of the western coast arising from a sudden coming together of a large body of people, strangers to each other, and without any fixed future respecting life in the far West, which had a tendency to set aside high regard for the moral side of life there was present in more staid communities. The early feeling entertained by the white man and his race against the yellow man and his race continued when society had been given form, which was a means to keep open and unbridged the gulf there is between the races and their civilization.

The Chinaman was required to go away from the white man and make his habitation where his peculiar methods of life would not offend the more sensitive nature of his white brother, who assumed that superiority which his nature seems to have given him.

The one blood system was disregarded in the distinction made, and the Chinese were made to understand that the one blood system was not considered in the enforced division or allotment to the races. The influence of the habits and customs of the yellow man upon the white race was not considered in a way to make the higher moral sense of the white man active, which may in some measure be explained by the blunting his moral sense received from modes of early life in the mines.

While the Chinaman remained in his assigned locality there was a disposition among the better classes to let him and his peculiar institutions alone without regard to the danger there was constantly present to physical and moral life through his continued presence in cities and towns on the western coast.

The higher order of humanity bestowed on the white race, cultivated by moral training, has lately made an appearance in San Francisco, chiefly through the efforts of the Examiner, whose high plane in morals should be recognized, as the vice in Chinatown are receiving an overhauling worthy of the good name of many of San Francisco's people, which is evidence of the moral sense there is in the city.

When the country becomes alive to the vice and turpitude there is continually present among these people when they are permitted to organize Chinese systems of government in the cities and towns of the Coast, and to direct them under Chinese rulers and customs, there will not be so many governments in the country whose object is the propagation of vice and immorality.

THEO. WINTERS ON THE UP GRADE.

The Journal is informed that Hon. Theo. Winters is again numbered among well men. It is a pleasure to the Journal to be able to say to his many friends that he has taken a new lease of life, which is likely to continue for many years. His sickness was of a threatening nature for some time, but a strong constitution and a determined will was more than the pale horse messenger needed.

a weaker subject for his death dealing shaft. Good men are not too plentiful and when one of them is called away he is missed by his friends. When a good man is seriously ill it is a relief when it is known that he has turned a corner and is on the up grade where the footing in life's pathway is more secure than it is in flats and swamps.

MINERS AND PROSPECTS.

What the Divers After Hidden Wealth Are Accomplishing in This Locality.

The Sweetwater Mill and Mining Company, of which J. J. Phelan is one of the principal stockholders, has bonded the Sayre mine, four miles from Sweetwater. A wagon road will be built to the mine and development work commence forthwith. The mine is in Mono county, although near Sweetwater.—Bulletin.

County Treasury Douglass received Saturday a check for $1,134.90 from the Con. Cal. & Virginia mining company as the bullion tax on the proceeds of that mine for the quarter ending March 31. This is the largest ranged and our readers will find the amount of bullion tax received in a number of years.—Chronicle.

The sale of all the property in Pioche belonging to Clafin & Godbe, which included the Bristol property, we are reliably informed has fallen through. This is another drawback to the famous copper, silver and lead mine of our county. We are sorry to note that these mines were all reverted back to their original owners.—Pioche Record.

The mining class in Virginia City has commenced a course in assaying, the State University having furnished all the necessary apparatus.

With 125,000 tons of ore blocked out the management of the Chairman mine will begin active work on the new mill at once. The old mill shut down last week to prepare for the excavations for the new buildings.—White Pine News.

A San Francisco syndicate composed of capitalists, has just engaged Professor Emery E. Smith of Stanford University to make a thorough examination of the nitre beds in the vicinity of Lovelock, Nev., with a view to developing the beds.

A transaction was rounded out in Zion yesterday by which Manager Pat Ryan of the Golden Star of Gold Mountain and his Eastern associates acquire control of the Jim Crow No. 2, and Naiad Queen mines, adjoining the De Lamar company's domain at De Lamar, Nevada. Of the former the purchasers acquire seven-eights and of the latter five-eights, these interests changing hands on a basis of $50,000 for the whole.—Salt Lake Tribune.

Character Told by Lips.
"Whether or not we believe in phrenology, physiognomy and kindred sciences, there are some peculiarities of feature that are quite often indicative of certain traits of character," said an observant man. "From no one feature of the face can the disposition be more accurately read than from the lips and especially the upper lip. The lower one is less prophetic.

"A person with a short, sharply curved upper lip is nearly always of a happy, lovable disposition. One with a short but straight upper lip is apt to be of a low order of intellect and coarse in his tastes. The person with a long, straight upper lip is the one to beware of. He has a will like adamant, is not always thoroughly trustworthy, is apt to be quarrelsome and jealous and is more often than not an unmitigated politician. If he is gifted with a strong intellect, he will make his mark in one way or another; if he is not, he may become a harmless person, a parasite or a scoundrel. The man whose upper lip protrudes is apt to be a shrewd business man.

"The person whose mouth has a decided droop at the corners may be a humorist, a hypochondriac or a poet. The possessor of a mouth curved in the style of Cupid's bow is indeed happy, for in nine cases out of ten he also possesses a refined, esthetic and yet practical nature, susceptible to every beautiful and ennobling influence."—Chicago Record.

A Russell Anecdote.
Lord Russell once presided at a dinner given for Sir Henry Irving on his return from America. While the dinner was in progress Lord Russell suggested to Conyngham Carr that he propose Sir Henry's health. "I can't make speeches, you know," he said.

Sir Henry gently replied, "I heard you make a fine speech before the Foreign commission."

To which the pungent Irishman answered, "Oh, yes, but then I had something to talk about!"

ODD FELLOWS ATTENTION.

ANOTHER SUGGESTION

What a Correspondent Thinks
Should be Done With the Red Cross Money.

COMSTOCK MINSTRELS

A Packed House Greeted the Boys
From Virginia Last Night.

What shall be done with the $250 in the treasury of the Reno Red Cross Society?

The idea will denote this sum to the city, but they desire an expression of opinion as to how it may best be expended.

The Journal columns are open. Express your wishes in this matter. Here is what an unknown correspondent writes:

What shall be done with the Red Cross surplus? Some one suggests investing it in a fountain. Yes, but let it be a fountain of knowledge.

With the numberless open ditches running through town, dogs and horses need not suffer from thirst, but many of our very little ones have in years past suffered mental loss by not having the advantages of the kindergarten.

An effort is being made by popular subscription to raise a sufficient sum to build a proper building for a public kindergarten. The public have responded generously to the call for funds, but the committee in charge of the work find there is still need of several hundred dollars in order to pay for ground and erect the building.

We take great pride in our University and in our public schools, from the senior class down to the receiving grade. All these schools and grades have a fixed habitation, but the kindergarten, where the foundation work is done, has been subject to all sorts of changes and will not be alive at the present time but for the united efforts of the ladies of the Association.

Miss Clapp, a charter member of the association, in view of erecting a fitting and lasting monument to her friend, Miss Babcock, could conceive of nothing more appropriate than a home for the kindergarten.

Her munificent donation of $1000 has been added to until Reno seems in a fair way to have one public building to which we can point with pride and say: "This shows the attitude, the disposition of our citizens toward education."

The money in the Red Cross treasury came from the public. Let it revert to the public by helping along this very worthy cause.

LIGNITE AT ELKO.

Two Leads of coal Being Worked in the Eastern Part of the State.

Recent developments have proved that immense coal and oil fields lie across the Humboldt river just south of the town of Elko. While prospecting work has been done for coal for several years, it is only recently that sufficient work has been done to determine the presence of coal in paying quantities.

The formation of the country and the surface indications not only show the presence of coal, but are of a character that prove to the expert that oil will be found in great quantities.

Up to this time the development work, says the Courier, consists of a shaft 60 feet deep with a 100-foot incline to north at a pitch of 20 degrees on the vein. This incline shows 11 feet of coal measure, of which 40 inches is solid coal. A 50-foot drift to the east shows 4 feet of coal measure, of which 38 inches is coal of good quality.

The character of the coal is black lignite. An analysis of the coal shows 46 per cent fixed carbon, 42.1 per cent volatile matters, 8.5 per cent ash, one-tenth of one per cent foreign matter and the remainder moisture.
